

Message from the Chief Executive Officer

CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch.

As we usher in 2026, I am pleased to reflect on the remarkable milestones highlighted in this month's Bulletin, each a powerful testament to Kenya Medical Training College's unwavering commitment to excellence, innovation, and service to the country.

The recognition of over 50 KMTC students who earned the President's Gold Award is a proud moment for the College. Their achievement reflects the values we strive to instil in our learners: discipline, resilience, leadership, and a deep commitment to community service. These qualities are as critical to healthcare delivery as technical competence, and I commend our students and staff for nurturing a culture that produces well-rounded professionals.

Across KMTC campuses, we continue to witness tangible progress in infrastructure development and programme expansion. The milestones achieved at Navakholo Campus, including the launch of a modern student hostel, the graduation of the first cohort of Community Health Assistants, and enhanced mobility through NG-CDF support, demonstrate the power of strategic partnerships in strengthening health training and extending care to the grassroots.

The growing collaboration with Amref Health Africa marks another critical step in preparing our students and alumni for a dynamic healthcare environment. By integrating entrepreneurship, innovation, and incubation into health training, we are empowering our graduates not only to seek employment but also to create solutions, generate jobs, and respond creatively to real community health challenges.

focus on leadership, governance, and institutional sustainability, as reflected in the Principals' Strategic Retreat. Strategic planning, data-driven decision-making, and honest dialogue remain central to ensuring that KMTC remains resilient, responsive, and future-ready.

I am also proud of our commitment to continuous professional development, exemplified by specialised short courses such as the Upper Extremity Splinting programme, and by partnerships that strengthen access to learning resources, including the long-standing collaboration with Book Aid International. These initiatives reinforce our mission to provide relevant, high-quality training that translates directly into improved patient outcomes.

As we move forward, I call upon our staff, students, and partners to remain united in purpose. Together, we will continue to advance KMTC's mandate of producing competent, compassionate, and innovative healthcare professionals who serve with integrity and dedication.

I thank all members of the KMTC fraternity for their hard work and commitment, and I look forward to another year of shared progress and impact.

President Ruto Visits Proposed KMTC Maralal, Pledges Support for Healthcare Training Expansion

H.E. President William Ruto visits the proposed KMTC Samburu site during his tour of Samburu County.

On the second day of his tour of Samburu County on November 10, 2025, H.E. President William Ruto visited the proposed KMTC in Maralal, marking a significant milestone for healthcare education in the region.

The President was received by the KMTC CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, accompanied by a team of KMTC staff. Hon Naisula Lesuuda's exemplary leadership in championing this project was notably recognised.

During the visit, President Ruto commended the remarkable progress of the project and assured that a modern student hostel would be constructed under the Affordable Housing Programme.

Emphasising the nation's healthcare priorities, the President affirmed, "We are investing in the training of healthcare professionals to ensure the success of Universal Health Coverage."

He further outlined ongoing reforms, including the rollout of the Social Health Authority and the recruitment of Community Health Promoters, describing them as critical steps toward building a responsive, people-focused healthcare system that reaches every Kenyan, wherever they reside.

Government Commits to Strengthening Human Resource for Health

The Government has reaffirmed its commitment to strengthening Human Resources for Health as a critical foundation for achieving Universal Health Coverage during a visit to the KMTCC Kilifi on December 15, 2025.

The visit was led by the Principal Secretary for Public Health and Professional Standards, Mary Muthoni, and focused on reviewing training quality, institutional standards, and the overall preparedness of health professionals. She was accompanied by KMTCC Board Director Mr. Adan Harakhe, CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch, and the Kilifi County Commissioner, Mr. David Wanyonyi.

During the visit, the PS highlighted key priority areas including compliance with regulatory requirements, strengthening clinical training and partnerships, improving staff welfare, promoting integrity and accountability, encouraging innovation, and enhancing community impact. These elements, she noted, are essential in building a responsive and effective health workforce.

Engagements with students emphasized the importance of professionalism, ethical conduct, excellence in training, and a strong service-oriented mindset to support people-centred healthcare delivery.

Founded in 1987, KMTCC Kilifi Campus has a student capacity of 978 and offers programmes in Medical Engineering, Clinical Medicine and Surgery, Community Health Nursing, Orthopaedic and Trauma Medicine, and Critical Care Nursing. The institution remains a key contributor to the training of skilled health professionals in line with national health priorities.

This visit demonstrates the Government's continued support for medical training institutions as strategic partners in strengthening the healthcare system and improving health outcomes across the country.

Teaching Methodology Training Conducted for KMTC Faculty

Participants of the training workshop.

The College remains steadfast in its commitment to reskill its faculty. This was evident during the Teaching Methodology course for KMTC Lecturers conducted between November 17 and 28, 2025, at KMTC Nakuru campus. The training brought together 102 lecturers drawn from across the KMTC campuses. Facilitated by the Department of Health Professions Education, the training aimed at empowering lecturers to be more adept at facilitating learning. It enhanced the pedagogical and leadership skills of the lecturers, enabling them to create more effective learning environments in classrooms and practical training sites. The lecturers were taken through a series of interactive sessions designed to enhance their skills in facilitation, instructional materials development, curriculum design, assessment of learning, and digital education.

The two-week workshop used a blended learning approach in which participants were introduced to the course through a one-week fully online module. The face-to-face component provided an opportunity to demonstrate practical concepts and engage in peer collaboration. At the core of this training is a microteaching opportunity where faculty members conduct a teaching session and are observed then given feedback by their colleagues.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Franklin Lewa, Head of the Department of Health Professions Education, urged the participants to embrace learner-centred teaching methodologies that promote deep learning.

While closing the workshop on behalf of the Deputy Director Academics, Dr. Nyawira Mwangi, Dr. Marsellah Ogendo challenged the participants to upgrade their skills as health professionals' educators, "The future of this College depends on our capacity as its faculty to improve our skills as facilitators of learning"

This initiative, part of the 2025-2026 Performance Contracting (PC) activities, targets 200 faculty members from across the KMTC campuses. A majority of them were recruited within the last two years. The remaining faculty will be trained between January and March 2026.

College Improves Its Performance Contracting Score for 2024/2025

The College has posted an improved Performance Contracting score for the 2024/2025 financial year, marking yet another milestone in the College's continued pursuit of excellence in training, research, and service delivery.

The evaluation meeting, held at the College headquarters' Boardroom in Nairobi, brought together senior management and departmental heads to review the institution's progress under the 2024/2025 performance cycle. The improved score reflects KMTC's dedication to enhancing institutional efficiency, promoting innovation, and aligning its operations with the government's Digitalisation of Public Services Agenda.

During the review, it was noted that KMTC had made remarkable achievements across several key performance areas. Notably, the College successfully increased enrolments across its campuses in various courses.

In a demonstration of its commitment to innovation and research, KMTC funded 32 research proposals to foster evidence-based practice and translate new ideas into impactful solutions for the health sector.

The College also prioritised curriculum relevance and quality by reviewing industry standards and developing 10 new curricula and training manuals to ensure alignment with current healthcare demands and emerging trends. In line with the government's digital transformation strategy, KMTC re-engineered its transcript and certificate issuance process and successfully onboarded the service onto the eCitizen platform, significantly improving efficiency, transparency, and the overall quality of service charter delivery.

Further underscoring its commitment to environmental sustainability, the College planted 127,204 trees across the country as part of its environmental conservation and climate action initiatives.

The evaluation committee commended the College for its strong performance trajectory and encouraged continued investment in digital systems, research capacity-building, and sustainable practices to strengthen institutional impact further.

Clinical Officers Council Surveillance Audit Gives KMTC a Clean Bill of Health

The College's Clinical Medicine and Surgery programme has received a clean bill of health from the Clinical Officers Council (COC) following the completion of a surveillance audit on November 25, 2025. This surveillance audit was part of ongoing national initiatives to guarantee that Clinical Officers receive high-quality training that meets both professional and academic standards.

During the exercise, the audit team examined several key aspects of the training programme. They evaluated how effectively the Clinical Medicine curriculum is delivered, reviewed academic procedures, assessed the hands-on clinical experience students receive, and examined the overall learning environment. Their goal was to ensure that KMTC continues to align its training programmes with regulatory standards and the constantly evolving needs of the healthcare sector.

College Meeting with Canadian Delegation Brings New Hope for Jobs

For every graduating student, the question remains: “What comes after graduation?”

The College is tackling this age-old question by actively forming partnerships that create access to global employment opportunities.

As part of this effort, the College has begun discussions with the Canadian NGO Tri-County Mennonite Homes (TCMH) in collaboration with Talent Beyond Borders (TBB).

This strategic initiative was formalised during an inaugural meeting at the KMTC headquarters on November 4, 2025, where CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch welcomed a delegation led by TCMH’s CEO, Mr Steven Harrison.

The meeting also included representatives from the Ministry of Labour, the National Employment Authority, and

When she received the team in her office on behalf of the CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, Deputy Director Academics, Dr. Nyawira Mwangi, welcomed the initiative, terming it a significant step forward in KMTC’s continued pursuit of excellence in health sciences education. “The College appreciates the collaboration with the COC to strengthen the training of Clinical Officers in its campuses countrywide,” she said. Dr. Nyawira noted that such partnerships are crucial for supporting the national goal of Universal Health Coverage by producing skilled, ethical, and compassionate healthcare providers ready to serve their communities.

The head of training at COC, Ms. Eunice Kuria, expressed her approval of the College’s performance, stating that the audit reinforced the institution’s firm adherence to the necessary regulatory standards for training Clinical Officers. “KMTC plays a key role as a benchmark for excellence in clinical training thanks to its consistent accountability,” she noted.

This audit is part of a broader quality assurance initiative covering all 42 KMTC campuses accredited to train Clinical Officers. It emphasises the Colleges essential role in strengthening Kenya’s healthcare workforce and its dedication to graduating students who are prepared to meet the evolving needs of the health sector.

Refugee Point.

The purpose of the visit was to lay the groundwork for a collaborative agreement to recruit KMTC graduates for placements and job opportunities in Canada.

This initiative seeks to address the persistent issue of youth unemployment by directly connecting KMTC’s large talent pool with a high-demand international market.

The partnership plans to begin by recruiting nurses and gradually include other professions, such as Emergency Medical Technicians, Radiographers, Healthcare Assistants, and Physiotherapists.

TCMH CEO Mr. Harrison, speaking during the meeting, acknowledged that with an ageing population in Canada, KMTC is strategically positioned to train healthcare professionals who can provide essential care.

He expressed his admiration for the College’s long history and the data that support its status as the best middle-level medical training institution in East and Central Africa.

Dr. Oluoch welcomed the partnership, terming it a “watershed moment” for KMTC graduates.

“Partnerships like this one will transform our students from local graduates into globally competitive professionals,” he stated.

The CEO expressed the College’s commitment to producing high-quality graduates, noting that it is actively investing in the latest training equipment.

Strengthening East-West African Health Relations as KMTC Concludes Key Meeting with Angola Delegation

KMTC reinforced its position as a regional leader in health workforce development as the strategic meeting with the Angolan delegation concluded, highlighting a commitment to cross-border cooperation. The discussions, led by Board Chairperson, Mr. Joseah K. Cheruiyot, at the College’s headquarters in Nairobi, successfully outlined the scope of collaboration under the existing Government-to-Government Memorandum of Understanding (MoU). The delegation arrived in Kenya on December 5, 2025, kicking off a four-day visit to key health facilities.

The Board Chair expressed KMTC’s readiness to assist Angola in strengthening its health system, stating, “The College is ready to walk with you and engage with agreements within our purview. We are prepared to support you by receiving your students or sending our trainers.” He emphasised that this partnership has the Board’s approval and is committed to direct engagement to identify Angola’s specific needs.

In his response, the Angolan head of delegation, National Director Exchange Programmes and International Relations at the Angolan Ministry of Health, Dr Julio Carvalho, expressed his gratitude: “Thank you for the way you have received us. Being accepted at the highest level of Kenya’s health system, the Ministry of Health, was such an honour, and we are happy that Kenya is ready to support us.” They acknowledged the excellent training at KMTC and the robust healthcare system built by the Kenyan government.

Echoing Dr. Oluoch’s sentiments, Deputy Director, Academics, Dr. Nyawira Mwangi, assured the TCMH team that all KMTC courses are accredited by the relevant bodies, ensuring that the College’s graduates are highly qualified.

Anticipating the deployment of their first group of students in March 2026, the Angolan team submitted essential logistical requests, seeking clarity that would enable their students to integrate smoothly into the College’s training.

In response, KMTC DDFP&A, Ms Lucy Chebungei, reaffirmed the College’s commitment, assuring the Angolan delegation that support is available “from the MOH to the Board and Management to the campus.”

Enhancing the research aspect of the partnership, Deputy Director of Academics, Dr. Nyawira Mwangi, welcomed Angola’s interest in collaborative research, affirming: “The College

The discussions are very timely, as the College plans to hold its 94th graduation ceremony on December 4, 2025, at which more than 22,000 students will officially enter the job market.

is ready to collaborate on research in response to the Angolan delegation’s request for research partnership.”

Further reinforcing KMTC’s readiness, Head of Intergovernmental Relations, Dr. Leah Bii, confirmed the development of a comprehensive framework to support Angolan professionals. “We will develop a package for your technicians to equate them with ours and allow them to undertake training in various specialisations,” she noted.

The meeting also benefited from insights from the Kenya Medical Practitioners and Dentists Council (KMPDC) Corporation Secretary and Legal Services Manager, Mr Michael Onyango, who provided a regulatory body perspective. He highlighted the role of the Association of Medical Councils of Africa (AMCOA) in facilitating knowledge transfer and supporting harmonised health training standards across the continent.

KMTC continues to demonstrate institutional commitment, establishing Kenya as a strategic African partner capable of leveraging its medical education expertise.

Registration Opens for World AIDS Day 2025 Half Marathon to Boost Kenya's HIV Response

On November 15, 2025, CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch joined a delegation led by the Principal Secretary for Medical Services, Dr. Ouma Oluga, at the College Headquarters to officially launch the registration for the World AIDS Day 2025 Half Marathon.

The launch marked the beginning of national preparations for this year's World AIDS Day celebrations, which will take place on November 30, 2025, at Nyayo Stadium in Nairobi. Organised by the National Syndemic Diseases Control Council (NSDCC), the event calls on Kenyans to register, participate, and support the national fight against Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) as the country intensifies efforts to end Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS) as a public health threat by 2030.

During the event, Dr. Oluga highlighted the rising vulnerability of young people, noting that 41 percent of new HIV infections occur among adolescents and youth aged 15 to 24 years. He also warned of a growing “triple threat” facing this age group, comprising rising HIV infections, an estimated 250,000 teenage pregnancies recorded annually, and over 5,000 cases of gender-based injuries.

Dr. Oluga further outlined the government's strengthened measures to enhance the national HIV response, including sustainable financing for HIV programmes, a new Kenya-US partnership framework, operationalisation of the Social Health Authority, integration of key health services, and continued investment in essential commodities and laboratory systems. He reaffirmed the government's commitment to coordinated action, stronger health systems, and safeguarding the progress made as Kenya accelerates efforts to end AIDS.

In his remarks, Dr. Oluoch reaffirmed KMTC's commitment to advancing national health priorities, noting that, as the leading trainer of health-care professionals in the region, the College will continue to champion initiatives that strengthen prevention, promote public health awareness, and build community resilience. He emphasised that KMTC's mission, to develop competent, compassionate, and community-responsive health professionals, remains central to supporting multi-sectoral efforts to end HIV and improve the overall well-being of Kenyans.

KMTC Joins National World AIDS Day Marathon, Rallying Youth to End AIDS by 2030

On November 30, 2025, the Kenya Medical Training College (KMTC) demonstrated its strong commitment to public health advocacy by participating in the National World AIDS Day Marathon at Nyayo National Stadium. The vibrant event brought together over 500 students and staff from Nairobi, Mathare, Karen, Manza, and Machakos campuses under the theme “One Race, One Goal – End AIDS by 2030 and End the Triple Threat.”

The occasion was graced by the Principal Secretary, State Department for Public Health and Professional Standards, Mary Muthoni, who led national calls for intensified youth engagement in the fight against HIV, teenage pregnancies, and gender-based violence. She was accompanied by a KMTC delegation led by the Deputy Director, Finance, Planning and Administration, Ms. Lucy Chebungei, who represented the CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch. The delegation also included the Resource Mobilisation Manager, Mr. Job Nyakado, Ag. Administrative Services Manager, Dr. Pricillah Anuri, and Head of Clinical Services, Dr. Kennedy Rateng.

Addressing participants, the PS commended the energy and passion displayed by young people and emphasised the critical role of academic institutions in driving health advocacy and behavioural change. “Today, we run not only for fitness, but for something bigger than ourselves,” she stated, urging youth to take ownership of their health choices and become champions of change within their communities. She further acknowledged KMTC’s leadership, noting, “Your presence here today signifies that the next generation of healthcare professionals is ready to lead the fight against AIDS and safeguard the well-being of our nation.”

In her remarks, Ms. Chebungei reaffirmed KMTC’s unwavering commitment to health promotion and youth empowerment. “KMTC students are the face of Kenya’s health future, and today they have demonstrated leadership beyond the classroom. Every step in this marathon is a move towards ending AIDS, reducing adolescent vulnerability, and building communities that are informed, empowered, and protected,” she said, adding that the College will continue to champion public health advocacy with passion and purpose.

The National Syndemic Diseases Control Council (NSDCC) CEO, Dr. Douglas Bosire, lauded the impressive turnout, highlighting the central role of young adults in advancing awareness and prevention efforts. “World AIDS Day reminds us that every step counts. By showing up in such great numbers, especially students and young professionals in training, we are proving that Kenya is firmly on the path toward ending AIDS by 2030,” he noted.

Beyond the marathon, participants benefited from free health services, including blood pressure checks, dental assessments, eye examinations, HIV testing, and cervical cancer screening. KMTC campuses countrywide also marked the day through community walks and free medical camps, amplifying the national call for awareness, prevention, and early intervention.

For KMTC students, the event provided a platform to actively engage in advocacy and community service as future healthcare professionals.

According to NSDCC data, Kenya recorded nearly 20,000 new HIV infections in 2024, marking a 19% increase from the previous year, with over 3,000 cases in Nairobi County alone. An estimated 1.3 million Kenyans are currently living with HIV, and young people aged 15–34 account for the majority of new infections, highlighting the urgency of sustained youth-focused interventions. These sobering statistics highlight why initiatives such as the World AIDS Day Marathon, anchored in education, engagement, and action, remain critical in Kenya’s journey toward an AIDS-free generation.

Walking the Talk on World Radiographers Day

KMTC staff and students participate in a walk during the World Radiographers Day celebrations in Kericho County.

On November 8, 2025, the College joined fellow professionals and stakeholders worldwide to commemorate World Radiography Day, underscoring the vital contributions radiographers make to healthcare in Kenya. Themed “Empowering Healthcare Through Imaging Excellence,” this year’s celebration inspired a collective commitment to technological advancement, teamwork, and compassion in patient care.

The day’s activities began with a wellness and awareness walk through Kericho town, highlighting the importance of accurate diagnosis and the quality of care provided through medical imaging services. Senior leadership, including Dr. Kelly Oluoch (represented by Gatundu Campus Principal Mr. Jonah Sigei), urged radiographers to embrace ongoing professional growth and uphold integrity as well as innovation in their practice.

A keynote address was delivered by the Society of Radiographers in Kenya (SORK) President Mr. Jervas Kenyanya, who emphasized that radiographers, often the unseen heroes of healthcare, play an indispensable role in diagnostics, treatment, and advancing the healthcare system. He encouraged both practicing and trainee radiographers to remain passionate, ethical, and open to rapid changes in imaging technology.

Highlighting the College’s broad impact, eleven campuses offering Medical Imaging Sciences participated in the event: Mombasa, Manza, Nairobi, Nyeri, Nakuru, Eldoret, Bungoma, Siaya, Kisumu, Kapkatet, and Homabay. Representatives from SORK, Heads of Department, and students came together to advocate for continuous learning and enhanced patient care.

Diversity on Display as Campus Marks 2025 Cultural Day

KMTC Mombasa held its 2025 Cultural Day on November 21, 2025, transforming the campus grounds into a vibrant celebration of Kenya's diverse heritage. The event brought together students, staff, and guests in a colourful display of tradition, talent, and unity. It served as a reminder of the richness of Kenya's cultural landscape and the critical role The College plays in nurturing well-rounded health professionals.

The celebration, held on campus, featured traditional dances, cultural exhibitions, music, fashion showcases, and an assortment of foods from communities across the country. Students worked collaboratively through their associations to ensure that each culture was authentically represented, while the campus events and welfare committee coordinated the day's activities to ensure a smooth flow.

Speaking during the ceremony, the Mombasa Campus Principal, Dr. Jacinta Mukonzo, emphasized the value of embracing diversity within the learning environment. "Our students come from all corners of the country, and today we celebrate that diversity. Cultural competence is crucial in healthcare, and events like this help build understanding, respect, and unity among future health professionals," she said.

Area Member of Parliament, Hon. Mohamed Ali, who attended as a special guest, commended the campus for its continued commitment to holistic training. "KMTC Mombasa continues to shine not only in academic excellence but also in fostering national cohesion. This Cultural Day reflects the spirit of togetherness and identity that strengthens our society," he remarked. At the end of the event, award presentations honored some of the most outstanding performances and displays, leaving students and staff inspired. The event reaffirmed the campus's commitment to building a culturally grounded, compassionate, and unified community.

College Honoured at the 2025 Public Service Reflection Dinner

KMTC was honoured for its courage and fortitude in showcasing the College's talent and unique innovation in a regional competitive process on December 5, 2025, during the 2025 Public Service Reflection Dinner and Agenda-Setting Forum for 2026, held in Kisumu City. The event, hosted by the Office of the Chief of Staff and Head of Public Service, Mr. Felix Koskei, brought together senior public sector leaders to review national progress and set priorities for the coming year.

The College received the award in recognition of its continued leadership within Kenya's health sector and its unwavering commitment to excellence in public service. This recognition reflects the College's vital role in strengthening the health workforce, advancing quality training, and contributing to national development through skilled human resources for health.

KMTC Board Chairperson, Mr. Joseah K. Cheruiyot, and Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, attended the ceremony and received the award on behalf of the College. They joined leaders from across government in reflecting on milestones achieved under the Bottom-Up Economic Transformation Agenda.

The forum offered an opportunity to review progress, assess what has worked, and identify areas that require further attention. Participants highlighted how whole-of-government approach has strengthened service delivery across sectors and reaffirmed the need for a disciplined, citizen-centred, and results-driven public service.

As the country prepares for 2026, the insights shared at the gathering will guide planning and sharpen national strategies. The College remains committed to supporting these goals by equipping the nation with competent health professionals and contributing to Kenya's broader development agenda.

Double Victory for KMTC as the Board Chair and Corporation Secretary Win Top 2025 Governance Awards

The College celebrated a night of honour and well-deserved recognition on November 29, 2025, at the Argyle Grand Hotel in Nairobi, through a gala that brought together Kenya's most distinguished leaders and institutions committed to excellence in governance. Among the night's achievements were two remarkable wins for the College, victories that have cemented the KMTC's place among the nation's governance champions.

In a moment that drew applause across the ballroom, the KMTC Board Chairperson, Mr. Joseah K. Cheruiyot, was crowned Chairman of the Year 2025. The award recognises his exceptional leadership, strategic stewardship, and unwavering dedication to strengthening governance, accountability, and institutional transformation at the College. Under his guidance, KMTC has continued to demonstrate robust corporate governance structures, heightened oversight, and a renewed commitment to delivering value to students and stakeholders.

The second victory of the night for the College was delivered by the Corporation Secretary and Legal Services Manager, Ms. Caroline Muchina, who took home the Corporation Secretary of the Year 2025 Award. Her recognition stands as a testament to her exemplary leadership in governance processes, legal compliance, institutional integrity, and the smooth coordination of board affairs.

Her win signals the continued rise of professional excellence at KMTC and underscores the institution's strong internal systems that uphold transparency and ethical leadership.

The two wins reflect more than individual achievements; they tell the story of an institution that continues to evolve, grow, and commit itself to the highest standards of governance in public service and healthcare education.

The awards were presented at a gala graced by the Cooperatives and Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) Development Cabinet Secretary, Hon. FCPA Dr. Wycliffe Ambetsa Oparanya, EGH, who celebrated institutions for their role in safeguarding governance excellence across the country.

The KMTC delegation, led by the Board Chairperson, Mr. Cheruiyot, CEO Dr. Oluoch, and accompanied by the Corporate Secretary Ms. Caroline Muchina, along with Deputy Registrar Student Affairs Ms. Grace Mwangi, shared in the memorable evening, visibly moved by the institution's double victory.

This year's gala, organised by the Institute of Certified Secretaries (ICS), will be remembered as the night the College demonstrated its authority in governance leadership, bringing home honours that now belong to the KMTC family.

KMTC Wins Top Accolades at the CIO Africa 2025 Awards

A section of the KMTC ICT team, led by Ms. Lilian Kamau (5th from the right), receive the award.

The College received recognition at the CIO Africa 2025 Awards, earning two major honors that establish it as a leader in digital transformation across the continent's education sector. The awards, held at Enashipai Resort and Spa, Naivasha, from November 19 to 21, 2025, under the theme "Innovation at Scale: Driving Business Growth Through IT Leadership," featured innovators and executives from around the continent celebrating institutions that are redefining efficiency and excellence through technology.

KMTC emerged as the top institution in Africa, taking home the Gold Plus One Award, an accolade that highlights the College's strategic use of technology to improve service delivery, enhance the student experience, and streamline internal processes. The College's continued digital advancement, particularly through upgrades to its Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system and adoption of data-driven operational decisions, has improved efficiency for both staff and students, demonstrating the measurable value of innovation in public education.

The College celebrated a second victory when its ICT Manager, Dr. Kenneth Riany, received the Golden Mark of Excellence 2025 Award for his outstanding project submission.

His leadership and creativity stood out in a competitive pool of candidates drawn from organizations across Africa, highlighting his significant contribution to strengthening KMTC's digital infrastructure and advancing innovative practices within the institution.

Reflecting on the achievement, the KMTC Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, expressed pride in the College's progress and the recognition it has earned. "These awards affirm that KMTC is not only a leader in health sciences training, but a trailblazer in digital transformation," the CEO noted. He added, "The College is committed to leveraging technology to enhance learning, support efficiency, and prepare our students for the rapidly evolving healthcare environment. This recognition motivates us to push even further."

With a record 162 organisations shortlisted for the awards, including major corporations, government agencies, and regional institutions, KMTC's success stands as a distinguished milestone. Outperforming some of the most competitive players in the digital sphere, the College has demonstrated that innovation in public health education is not only possible, but scalable and impactful.

Campus Triumphs at 98th Kenya Music Festival, Championing Cultural Participation

The College continues to demonstrate its commitment to holistic education and cultural enrichment as Nakuru Campus emerged victorious at the 98th Kenya Music and Cultural Festival. The campus secured a trophy in Class 1301c with a compelling cultural theatre performance that captivated both judges and spectators.

The national festival, hosted at Moi Girls High School, Eldoret, concluded on, December 8, 2025, after a vibrant showcase that began on November 29, 2025. Held under the theme “Threads of Culture, Weaves of Opportunity,” the event celebrated the powerful interplay between cultural heritage and socio-economic progress. The closing ceremony was officiated by His Excellency, the Deputy President, Prof. Kithure Kindiki, further underscoring the festival’s national significance.

KMTC Nakuru’s winning presentation, a dramatised oral verse titled “Twende Theatre,” delivered a strong message on the value of participation in cultural festivals. Through dynamic performance and artistic depth, the piece highlighted culture as a unifying force and a gateway to opportunity, echoing the festival’s overarching theme.

Present to receive the award on behalf of the College was the CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch. His attendance affirmed the College’s dedication to nurturing well-rounded graduates who excel not only academically and clinically, but also culturally and socially.

Speaking at the event, Dr. Oluoch reinforced the College’s belief that cultural competence is an essential component of national cohesion and professional development. “Cultural competence is not just an addition to our training; it is central to building national cohesion and shaping well-rounded health professionals who can serve with understanding, respect, and unity,” said Dr Oluoch.

KMTC Nakuru’s achievement demonstrates the College’s ongoing leadership in integrating arts, culture, and community involvement into its training philosophy. The victory also honours the important role educational institutions play in preserving Kenya’s cultural heritage while employing artistic expression to foster meaningful societal dialogue.

The College, on November 13, 2025, hosted a delegation from the Ministry of Health, led by the Director of Health Sector Coordination and Research, Dr. Omar Ahmed, to lay the groundwork for an upcoming visit by an Angolan delegation scheduled for December 4 to 8, 2025.

The discussions, chaired by CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, represented by the Deputy Director, Finance, Planning and Administration, Ms. Lucy Chebungei, focused on deepening collaboration between Kenya and Angola in health workforce training and development.

With a Government-to-Government Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) already in place, the meeting aimed to prepare for the upcoming visit by identifying key sites for the delegation to tour that showcase the country's robust healthcare training and service delivery system.

The Angolan delegation's visit follows a similar engagement in October 2023, when a joint team from Kenya, comprising Ministry of Health officials and a KMTC delegation led by the Board of Directors, visited Angola to explore areas of mutual interest and establish pathways for collaboration in healthcare training and capacity development.

Notably, the Angolan delegation will be among the guests at the KMTC 94th Graduation Ceremony, where the College will graduate over 22,000 well-trained, fit-for-purpose healthcare professionals into the workforce. The ceremony offers the visiting team a firsthand look at Kenya's robust medical training model and its contribution to the health sector.

Speaking during the meeting, Ms. Chebungei highlighted the College's strengths, noting that a collaboration with Angola would represent "a new level of partnership that blends diplomacy, shared growth, and practical cooperation in healthcare training."

Angola, with a population of over 36 million, continues to invest in rebuilding and expanding its healthcare sector. Kenya, through KMTC, is strategically positioned to support this effort by leveraging its extensive experience in training health professionals and strengthening primary health systems across the region.

As KMTC prepares to celebrate its 94th graduation and host the Angolan delegation, it continues to strengthen Kenya's standing as a leader in health education, innovation, and cross-border cooperation, cultivating a workforce ready to transform health systems both locally and globally.

Labour Mobility and Global Partnerships Ahead of the 94th Graduation Ceremony

A KMTTC student demonstrates a skill in the laboratory during a tour of the skills laboratory by the Canadian delegation.

As the College prepares for its 94th Graduation Ceremony on December 4, 2025, at the Moi International Sports Centre, Kasarani, the College continues to expand international partnerships to create global employment pathways for its graduates.

KMTC Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, on November 11, 2025, hosted a delegation from the Government of Canada - New Brunswick Province at the Headquarters for high-level discussions on potential collaboration to boost healthcare labour provision and address workforce gaps in the Canadian health sector.

During the meeting, Dr. Oluoch reaffirmed KMTC's commitment to producing competent, adaptable, and globally competitive healthcare professionals, noting that the College's graduates are well-prepared to serve both locally and internationally. He further highlighted that over 22,000 graduands will be conferred with various certificates, diplomas, and higher diplomas during the upcoming graduation, a testament to KMTC's critical role in sustaining Kenya's healthcare workforce.

Speaking on behalf of the Canadian Government, Mr. Dany Couillard expressed appreciation for KMTC's quality training standards and commitment to healthcare excellence. He reported that New Brunswick faces a growing healthcare labour shortage, with 65 percent of its population elderly, underscoring the urgent need for skilled health professionals to support its health system. Mr. Couillard described the potential partnership as a "strategic pathway towards strengthening healthcare delivery through skilled international collaboration."

In line with its global focus, KMTC has also introduced foreign-language training into its curriculum to prepare students for cross-cultural engagement and international healthcare practice. This initiative ensures that graduates are equipped not only with technical expertise but also with the communication skills required to thrive in diverse healthcare environments.

As KMTC marks nearly a century of transformative health training, the College remains steadfast in its mission to enhance labour mobility, strengthen global partnerships, and ensure that every graduate is both employable and impactful in advancing healthcare outcomes worldwide.

College Explores Labour Migration Collaboration with Paramedic Association of New Brunswick, Canada

The College hosted Mr. Derek Cassista, Deputy Registrar of the Paramedic Association of New Brunswick (PANB), Canada, and Lead Expert/Consultant in Health Care Economics and Government Relations, at its headquarters on November 27, 2025.

Mr. Cassista paid a courtesy visit to the College to explore opportunities for collaboration in labor migration for healthcare professionals.

Speaking during the visit, Mr. Cassista noted that the Association was delighted to engage with KMTC and gain first-hand insight into the College's training curricula.

He emphasized that aligning KMTC's programmes with the Canadian healthcare system would help meet the growing demand for qualified health workers in Canada.

"Canada has an aging population and an increasing shortage of healthcare providers. We are keen on building a partnership with the Kenyan Government and KMTC to tap into Kenya's highly skilled health workforce," he said.

He further highlighted PANB's readiness to support curriculum review efforts and contribute to faculty empowerment as a strategy to strengthen training outcomes.

Representing the CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, Deputy Director, Academics, Dr. Nyawira Mwangi, welcomed the engagement, terming it a significant milestone in expanding job opportunities for Kenyan youth while contributing meaningfully to Canada's health service delivery.

During the visit, Mr. Cassista and his team toured the Skills Laboratory, Simulation Lab, and several classrooms. They interacted with students who demonstrated their competencies, leaving the delegation impressed by the high standards of training and professionalism displayed by KMTC Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) students.

The proposed collaboration marks a promising step towards strengthening global partnerships and expanding international career pathways for KMTC students.

Mr. Cassista was accompanied by Ms. Sharon Rebecca and Mr. Nelson Rono from the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection, Directorate of Labour Migration and Management.

Also present during the meeting were Canadian High Commission representative Mr. Kelvin Murerwa; KMTC Deputy Registrars Ms. Lucy Kuria (Quality Assurance), Ms. Grace Mwangi (Student Affairs), Mr. Felix Mutua (Head of Department, Clinical Medicine); Nairobi Campus Deputy Principals, Ms. Carolyn Oyugi (Finance and Administration); and Mr. Willy Bett (Academics).

KMTC Equips Students with New Skills to Create Jobs in the Health Sector

KMTC Senior Chief Principal Lecturer and Head of Short Courses Dr. Jebichi Maswan, giving her remarks during the meeting.

KMTC has begun training its students and alumni to strengthen their careers, increase their employability, and open new opportunities outside traditional hospital roles.

With youth unemployment rising worldwide, the College is focusing on practical skills to support job creation and business innovation in the health sector.

Through a partnership with Amref Health Africa in Kenya under the Learning for Life programme, more than 80,000 KMTC students will receive training in health entrepreneurship.

CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch said the programme aims to help students discover opportunities beyond hospital walls and build services such as community health initiatives, wellness programmes, telehealth solutions, diagnostic ventures, and health education services.

“The College will establish an incubation centre at the Nairobi Campus where students can present their ideas and receive support to develop, test, and grow them,” he noted.

To launch this effort, the College trained 200 faculty members in Nakuru and Nairobi.

Resource Mobilisation Manager Mr. Job Nyakado said the weeklong training, which began on December 8, 2025, will also be available on the eLearning platform so that alumni can benefit.

This initiative comes at a time when health entrepreneurship is expanding globally.

Young innovators are introducing health technology solutions, community clinics, digital health platforms, mobile laboratories, and wellness hubs that respond to real health needs.

In India, youth-founded platforms such as Practo and 1mg now serve millions of people and employ thousands across the health value chain.

In Nigeria, LifeBank has changed how hospitals receive blood and emergency supplies, creating work in logistics, technology, and clinical support.

Kenya is also seeing steady growth, with companies such as Ilara Health, MyDawa, and Ponea Health opening new opportunities for laboratory technologists, clinicians, pharmacists, and digital health specialists.

Across Africa and beyond, young people are establishing clinics, wellness centres, telemedicine platforms, home-care services, and community outreach programmes that expand access to care and create employment.

KMTC’s training programme places its students at the heart of this growing global movement by giving them the tools, mentors, and opportunities they need to build meaningful careers and shape the future of healthcare.

Accelerating Safer Roads Through Lifesaving Skills

The College, on November 13, 2025, took a significant step toward strengthening emergency response and road safety in Kenya during a high-level consultative meeting held at a Hotel in Nairobi. The engagement, attended by representatives of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA), road safety stakeholders, and KMTC officials, centred on the College’s Boda Boda First Responder Training Initiative, a country-wide programme transforming riders into lifesavers.

KMTC CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch highlighted the vital role of boda boda riders as first responders, especially in areas where emergency services are delayed. With over 1.5 million riders nationwide and motorcycle-related crashes accounting for 33% of road fatalities in 2024, KMTC stressed the importance of equipping riders with essential emergency care skills.

“Who reaches the injured before the ambulance arrives?” Dr. Oluoch posed the question, noting that boda boda riders are often the first on the scene but lack the basic life-saving skills that could prevent avoidable deaths.

CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch addresses participants during the meeting.

Over the years, the College has trained more than 9,000 riders across 90 campuses, offering practical skills such as bleeding control, safe lifting techniques, chest compressions, choking response, and scene management. The College has also integrated first aid and trauma management into all its academic programmes, ensuring that every KMTC graduate has lifesaving skills.

The meeting acknowledged key challenges, including funding gaps that limit national scaling. To train 10,000 additional riders, KMTC requires Kshs.

14 million, excluding monitoring and evaluation costs. However, stakeholders agreed that the programme remains one of the most cost-effective investments in reducing preventable deaths, costing just Kshs. 1,400 per rider for a two-day course.

Dr. Oluoch called on partners to support the next phase of the programme, saying, “KMTC brings the expertise, infrastructure, and credibility to transform community response, not as a project, but as a system.”

New Laisamis Maternity Wing Expands Training Opportunities for KMTC Students

Marsabit Governor Hon. Mohamud Ali (left) with county and M-Pesa foundation officials tour the new wing.

KMTC Marsabit has received a significant boost in its training capacity following the commissioning of a new ultra-modern maternity wing at Laisamis Hospital on November 13, 2025.

As a clinical training site for Marsabit Campus students pursuing Nursing, Clinical Medicine, and Community Health Assistant programmes, the expanded facility now offers an improved environment for hands-on learning, an essential component of producing skilled, practice-ready health professionals for Marsabit County and beyond.

The new 28-bed maternity wing, complete with a dedicated surgical theatre, neonatal unit, ultrasound capability, and reliable power backup, will significantly widen the range of clinical cases and procedures accessible to students. This translates into richer clinical rotations, more opportunities to develop critical competencies, and a stronger pipeline of health workers able to respond effectively to maternal and newborn health needs in the region.

Speaking during the ceremony, the Campus Principal, Dr. Agnes Linus, emphasised that the investment comes at a time when the Campus is strengthening its academic and practical training programmes. With about 300 students currently enrolled, the new maternity wing supports KMTC's mission to produce competent health workers who can serve in every corner of the vast county. She added, "For Marsabit Campus, this investment means more than improved infrastructure; it means better learning, better skills, and ultimately better healthcare for our people. Our students will now train in an environment that reflects the standards we aspire to deliver across the county."

Dr. Linus took the opportunity to request hostel facilities for KMTC students undertaking clinical rotations in Laisamis. In response, Deputy Governor Solomon Riwe committed to taking up the matter under the county's Affordable Housing Programme, acknowledging the need to support student welfare to maximise their training outcomes.

Further strengthening the College's role in expanding local access to training, Dr. Linus outlined the minimum entry requirements for KMTC programmes and pledged to set up a dedicated application desk with an officer to assist potential students in Laisamis. The area MCA, Daniel Burcha, assured the community that he would follow up to ensure that qualified youths applied and took advantage of KMTC opportunities.

Safaricom's Mr. Patrick Mburu, a key partner behind the maternity wing's construction, acknowledged the strong partnership with KMTC, remarking that their role is to complement the College's work. "We provide the infrastructure; KMTC provides the human resources for health. Together, we strengthen healthcare for this region," he said.

County Executive Committee Member for Health, Malicha Boru, highlighted that Marsabit County invested Kshs. 45 million in Laisamis Hospital during the last financial year alone. With the hospital steadily advancing toward Level IV status, The College stands to benefit even further as clinical training becomes more robust and diversified.

Hospital Expansion set to Enhance Clinical Training Opportunities for Students

KMTC Eldoret stands to benefit from one of the region's most significant health infrastructure projects following the groundbreaking of the new 2,000-bed Moi Teaching and Referral Hospital (MTRH) facility in Kiplombe, Uasin Gishu County.

The event, held on November 17, 2025, brought together national and county leaders, including the Cabinet Secretary for Health, Hon. Aden Duale, alongside the KMTC Board Chairperson, Mr. Joseah K. Cheruiyot, CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch. Eldoret Campus staff and students also joined the ceremony.

Hon. Duale highlighted the government's focus on strengthening medical training institutions and referral systems, calling the project "a cornerstone of Kenya's future health security and service excellence."

KMTC Board Chairperson, Mr. Cheruiyot, speaking on the importance of the partnership between the hospital and the College, reiterated: "Our collaboration with MTRH has always been central to producing highly skilled graduates. This new facility will elevate the training experience and ensure our students are ready to serve in any setting across the region and the continent."

CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch highlighted the strategic significance of the development, noting: "This expansion strengthens Kenya's capacity to train a healthcare workforce capable of meeting future demands. KMTC students will greatly benefit from exposure to a modern, high-capacity hospital built to international standards."

Later in the day, the Chairperson and CEO visited KMTC Eldoret, met with staff and students, and reaffirmed KMTC's commitment to strengthening teaching, clinical training, and service delivery through strategic partnerships such as the one with MTRH.

Once completed, the new MTRH complex, expected to accommodate 4,000 beds, will expand access to specialised healthcare services. For KMTC Eldoret, it represents a significant leap forward in the training environment available to students.

The expansion comes at a strategic time for KMTC, just days before the College's 94th Graduation Ceremony, where over 22,000 health professionals are set to join the workforce.

The MTRH development aligns with national goals to build a stronger, well-trained workforce capable of supporting Kenya's Universal Health Coverage agenda.

Eldoret Campus Boosts Ophthalmic Training with Ksh 2.7 million Equipment Donation from Fred Hollows Foundation

Eldoret Campus is set to significantly enhance its ophthalmic training capacity following the donation of specialised training equipment worth Ksh 2.7 million from the Fred Hollows Foundation Kenya (FHFk). The equipment, officially handed over on December 17, 2025, marks a major milestone in strengthening hands-on clinical training for Ophthalmic Clinical Officers.

The donation comprises critical ophthalmic training tools, including retinoscopes, direct and indirect ophthalmoscopes, retraction boxes, and cataract surgery sets, to improve the quality, scope, and relevance of practical learning. This investment is expected to directly enhance students' competencies and improve the delivery of eye care services in the country.

Representing CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch, Eldoret Campus Principal Mr. Daniel Kimwetich described the donation as a transformative step for ophthalmic training. "This support will significantly strengthen our capacity to deliver world-class ophthalmic training and ensure our learners acquire practical, industry-relevant skills," he said, adding that the partnership is central to advancing the College's mission of producing highly skilled and competent healthcare professionals.

Mr. Kimwetich further reaffirmed the College's commitment to strategic partnerships, revealing plans to establish a state-of-the-art ophthalmology training centre at the Eldoret Campus through continued collaboration with FHFk. "This equipment will greatly enhance hands-on training and ensure our graduates are well prepared to meet the growing and evolving needs of the eye-health sector," he noted.

Speaking on behalf of FHFk, Mr. Milo highlighted the Foundation's over-decade-long partnership with KMTC, which has supported skills laboratories, faculty development, and the training of hundreds of mid-level eye-health professionals nationwide. "We remain committed to expanding learning infrastructure at Eldoret and Nakuru campuses, with Nakuru identified as a future centre of excellence in ophthalmology training," he stated, underscoring FHFk's long-term investment in Kenya's eye-care workforce.

KMTC Ophthalmology Coordinator Ms. Caroline Tanui termed the donation both timely and impactful, noting that it aligns with shared institutional goals. "This collaboration reflects our joint commitment to fighting avoidable blindness by equipping our trainees with modern tools and competencies that meet global standards," she said.

In a further demonstration of partnership, KMTC has provided office space at the Eldoret Campus to host FHFk's North Rift regional operations enhancing coordination, outreach, and regional impact.

Following the handover ceremony, the delegation toured the ophthalmology classroom, library, and skills laboratory housed in the campus' new academic complex, which is set to be fully equipped by FHFk.

Through such high-impact partnerships, the College continues to strengthen ophthalmic training, expand institutional capacity, and contribute meaningfully to developing a skilled, fit-for-purpose healthcare workforce, thereby advancing equitable access to quality eye care services across Kenya.

Medical Camp Restores Hope and Dignity: Brings Life-Saving Care to Thousands

KMTC's Head of Clinical Services, Dr. Kennedy Rateng (right), serves a member of the public during the medical camp.

The curtain has fallen on the seventh Ndhiwa Annual Medical Camp, held from November 22 -23, 2025, marking yet another milestone in bringing quality healthcare closer to the people. Residents of the Ndhiwa community have a renewed reason to smile as the two-day outreach, hosted at the Ndhiwa Campus, brought critical medical services to their doorsteps at absolutely no cost.

The camp recorded an impressive turnout, with over 3,000 patients receiving treatment. Additionally, more than 200 patients were referred to various health facilities for advanced or specialised care, ensuring a continuum of support beyond the event.

The Chief Guest, Health Cabinet Secretary Hon. Aden Duale, represented by the Director General of Health, Dr. Patrick Amoth, praised the initiative's consistency. "This initiative is more than service; it is dignity restored. Seeing worry turn into relief is the true meaning of Universal Health Coverage," Dr. Amoth said. He applauded the organisers for sustaining the camp for seven years, adding, "This shows deep love and commitment to the well-being of Ndhiwa. This is how communities thrive."

Dr. Amoth also emphasised the need to intensify the fight against HIV/AIDS and urged residents to take advantage of the Social Health Authority (SHA) membership to secure their long-term health coverage.

Presiding over the closing ceremony, CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch applauded the collaboration that made the camp a success. He highlighted significant infrastructural developments aimed at boosting the capacity of the Ndhiwa Campus. "I want to sincerely applaud the NG-CDF Ndhiwa for standing with Ndhiwa Campus. We are grateful to the government for allocating Kshs. 30 million towards the construction of a new tuition block." Dr. Oluoch reported that KMTC is also constructing 580 affordable student hostels, which will significantly expand access to training.

The CEO further urged parents and guardians to utilise the Kenya Universities and Colleges Central Placement Service (KUCCPS) to enrol their children in the College.

Accompanying the CEO, Ndhiwa MP Hon. Martin Peters Owino reaffirmed the NG-CDF's continued support for the institution's growth. "The partnership between the NG-CDF and KMTC is a great blessing, not just to the institution but to the entire community. We will continue supporting the Campus because when the College grows, Ndhiwa grows," the MP stated.

Hon. Owino also expressed gratitude to the KMTC leadership for securing essential logistical support, specifically a bus and a double-cabin vehicle, noting that these resources would enhance teaching and learning and future community outreach activities.

Echoing the sentiments, Ndhiwa campus Principal Mr. Bruce Olindi noted, "This event has brought out the heart of the College service, compassion, and professionalism."

For many of these residents, the medical camp, a partnership of Ndhiwa NG-CDF, the Homa Bay County Government, KMTC, and other partners, was a rare opportunity to access critical health services.

This multi-agency collaboration ensured that ailments that may have gone untreated for months were finally addressed with the dignity and professional care that every citizen deserves, serving as a critical lifeline for the community's most vulnerable members.

On November 9, 2025, the KMTCC Isiolo Presidential Award team, along with staff members, took an important step toward social upliftment by visiting Victor's Children's Home in Isiolo. This visit was part of the campus's broader CSR initiative, which aims to give back to the community and support vulnerable populations.

During their time at the children's home, the team donated various food items, sanitary pads, and other essential supplies vital to the children's daily lives. These contributions not only met immediate needs but also fostered a sense of care and support for the children.

Lodwar Campus Hosts Successful Blood Drive, Strengthening Community Health and Service Delivery Commitment

Lodwar, in partnership with the Ministry of Health–Turkana County, the Blood Bank Unit at Lodwar County Referral Hospital and the Kenya Red Cross, successfully hosted a primary blood drive on November 18, 2025. This initiative, part of the campus's CSR programme, aimed to save lives, improve community health systems, and promote a culture of service among students and staff.

The event was attended by the CEC for Health, Dr. Joseph Esekun Epem, who set an example by donating blood and received a Certificate of Best Advocate for Blood Donation. Dr. Esekun expressed gratitude to the College for its continuous efforts to train well-rounded healthcare professionals who serve both in medical facilities and in the community.

Lodwar Campus was also recognised as the Most Donating Institution, reinforcing its reputation as a centre of excellence in humanitarian health and community service. This reflects the Colleges' mission to deliver innovative, high-quality health training that responds to national and community needs while nurturing socially responsible professionals.

Beyond immediate lifesaving impact, the blood drive demonstrated the Campus's strategic commitment to CSR, community engagement, and public health advocacy, key pillars of KMTCC's Strategic Plan. By mobilising students, staff, and partners to contribute meaningfully, the campus continues to strengthen community trust, enhance its visibility as a leader in health education, and embody its vision of producing competent, compassionate health professionals dedicated to the well-being of the communities they serve.

KMTC Lodwar Promotes Sanitation and Public Health in Kakuma

KMTC staff and students during the celebrations.

Lodwar Campus actively participated in the World Toilet Day celebrations on November 19, 2025, held in Kakuma's Kalobeyei settlement. As a Centre of Excellence in Humanitarian Public Health, the campus demonstrated its commitment to environmental conservation, a key aspect of its CSR mandate, through a well-received student skit and an energetic Sudanese cultural dance performance.

The event was graced by the Deputy Governor, Dr. John Erus, who applauded Lodwar Campus for creating a space to remind the community of the importance of proper sanitation. "Access to safe sanitation is a key human right and a cornerstone of public health. On this World Toilet Day, I commend KMTC Lodwar and all partners for championing hygiene and sanitation awareness in our communities. Initiatives like these not only save lives but also empower our residents to live healthier, dignified lives," he said.

The PS Ministry of Health representative, Director Naomi Mutie, expressed her appreciation to the Principal of KMTC Lodwar for spearheading this initiative, noting that toilets are essential structures in society that play a vital role in promoting proper sanitation and hygiene practices.

Initiatives like World Toilet Day demonstrate Lodwar Campus' strategic commitment to CSR, public health advocacy, and community engagement, reinforcing its mission to produce responsible health professionals who actively contribute to the well-being of the communities they serve.

Also, in attendance were the Turkana County Executive Committee Member for Health, United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees representatives, the Deputy County Commissioner, and other local leaders.

Siaya Campus Hosts World Pneumonia Day

Siaya students during the event.

Siaya hosted this year's World Pneumonia Day on November 12, 2025, under the theme, "Defeat Pneumonia, Every Action Counts and Every Effort Matters." The event brought together students, staff, health professionals, and community members to raise awareness about one of the leading causes of preventable deaths worldwide.

Presiding over the event, Ministry of Health Director General Dr. Patrick

Amoth emphasized the importance of teamwork in fighting pneumonia. He lauded the College for its dedication to health education and community outreach.

A highlight of the event was a student-led skit that demonstrated the symptoms of pneumonia, available treatment options, prevention strategies, and the vital importance of immunization. Dr. Amoth commended the students for their creativity and clarity in delivering life-saving messages, noting that their performance perfectly matched the day's theme. He highlighted that such initiatives reflect KMTC's strong dedication to training skilled, compassionate, and community-oriented mid-level health professionals for the country and beyond.

Webuye Campus Visits Bungoma Women's Prison

Webuye Campus staff and students visited Bungoma Women's Prison on November 23, 2025, to donate foodstuffs and other essential items to the institution's welfare department. The initiative was organized as part of the campus's CSR efforts, under the Colleges Strategic Plan's social upliftment pillar, to support vulnerable groups and give back to the community.

The visit aimed to enhance inmates' well-being by providing resources and fostering a sense of care and unity. By involving students and staff in practical community service, the Campus continues to show its dedication to social responsibility, community participation, and the comprehensive development of both students and the broader society.

Through initiatives like this, KMTC Webuye not only addresses immediate community needs but also instills in its students the values of empathy, service, and civic responsibility, reinforcing the institution's mission to produce competent and socially conscious health professionals.

KMTC Yatta Tree Growing Initiative Marks a Step Towards Environmental Stewardship

Yatta Campus conducted a tree planting exercise on November 20, 2025, involving staff and students, in line with the President's directive on environmental conservation. Over 250 trees, including fruit trees, were planted within the campus grounds, contributing to both environmental sustainability and food security.

The exercise was graced by Ms. Juliet Mutune, Hospitality Manager at Matuu Level Four Hospital. Participants were sensitised on tree growing techniques and the importance of nurturing them to maturity to maximize their environmental benefits.

The initiative aimed to promote climate change awareness, enhance the campus green cover, and instill a culture of environmental stewardship among students and staff.

LEADERSHIP AND GOVERNANCE

Board and Management Lead Strategic Academic Council Meeting to Strengthen Institutional Excellence

A section of KMTCC Campuses' Principals follow proceedings during the Academic Council meeting.

The College Board and Management held a week-long Academic Council meeting at the Nairobi Campus from November 3 to 7, 2025. This gathering of Campus Principals, Heads of Department and Management, focused on reviewing the College's academic and operational priorities, serving as a key forum for reflection and strategic planning essential to KMTCC's mission as Kenya's leading health training institution.

Discussions throughout the week focused on strengthening student welfare, improving teaching, optimizing resources, increasing staff productivity, and reinforcing safety and professionalism across KMTCC campuses. The sessions aimed to ensure the College effectively meets changing national health needs while maintaining its commitment to quality and continuous improvement.

In his address to the Council, KMTCC Board Chair Mr. Joseah Cheruiyot reaffirmed the Board's support for the college's transformation agenda and reforms. He emphasized the Board's commitment to providing necessary human resource capacity, including staffing, leadership support, and policy alignment, to ensure effective curriculum delivery. Mr. Cheruiyot assured the Council that the Board will champion policies that enhance operational efficiency and transparency. "We are committed to empowering our staff, strengthening leadership structures, and creating a conducive environment that enables KMTCC to thrive," he affirmed.

CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch stressed the importance of maintaining quality and professional integrity in academic activities. He stated, "There must be no delegation of teaching that compromises quality. Lessons must be delivered and attended as scheduled, and our students must be handled with the utmost professionalism," emphasizing that adherence to these standards is crucial for KMTCC's reputation as a center of excellence and the cornerstone of its national mission.

Dr. Oluoch emphasized KMTCC's recognition by the Kenya Bureau of Standards (KEBS) as a College of quality, highlighting the institution's commitment to maintaining strong quality management systems. He stated, "To destroy a nation, destroy the quality of its education," underscoring the importance of this recognition in guiding daily conduct and decision-making at KMTCC.

The CEO further emphasized the importance of enhanced engagement in research, innovation, and consultancy to boost KMTCC's competitiveness and impact on national health. He stressed that professionalism, accountability, and excellence should define the College's culture.

By the end of the week, the Academic Council identified key action areas to improve operational efficiency, learning outcomes, and KMTCC's national influence, guiding future planning and quality initiatives across campuses.

KMTC Concludes Strategic Risk Management Capacity Building for Champions

A week-long capacity-building workshop to strengthen institutional risk management was held from November 24 to 28, 2025, bringing together Risk Champions from all KMTC campuses. The training was designed to equip participants with modern tools, frameworks, and practical skills to proactively identify, assess, and mitigate emerging risks, while fostering a strong culture of risk awareness throughout the College.

The training also created a valuable platform for knowledge sharing, collaboration, and the development of a unified approach to risk management.

Speaking on behalf of the KMTC CEO, Dr. Kelly Oluoch, the Deputy Director, Finance, Planning and Administration, Ms. Lucy Chebungei, emphasised the critical role of Risk

Champions in safeguarding institutional resilience. “The role of these risk champions is vital in ensuring the College remains resilient in the face of an increasingly dynamic operating environment. This investment empowers them to lead our risk management efforts and ultimately secure the long-term success of KMTC,” she said.

Participants gained hands-on insights into identifying potential risks, developing effective mitigation strategies, and leveraging opportunities to support the College’s strategic objectives. The College’s Risk Management Officer, Dr. Edwin Omondi, expressed confidence in the programme’s impact, noting, “Equipping our risk champions with the right knowledge and tools will deliver tangible benefits, enabling the institution to navigate today’s complex risk landscape more effectively.”

College Strengthens Digital Governance with ERP and EGP Training

KMTC ICT Officer Mr. Dennis Kimani takes participants through a training session.

KMTC conducted comprehensive training for Board Directors, Management and Campus Principals on the Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) and Electronic Government Procurement (EGP) systems, in line with national and global best practices in institutional governance and digital transformation, from November 24–28, 2025, in Mombasa.

The training was officially opened by the Deputy Director, Finance, Planning and Administration, Ms. Lucy Chebungei, and formally closed by the Chief Executive Officer, Dr. Kelly Oluoch. The ERP component covered key functional areas, including student management, student academics, timetabling, asset management, digital approvals, and the accommodation module. This has equipped Principals with enhanced capacity to digitally manage student records, academic processes, timetables, institutional assets, and student accommodation, in line with modern higher education management standards.

Participants were also sensitised on the Electronic Government Procurement system, introducing them to the new e-procurement framework that aligns KMTC with Government directives and public sector procurement regulations. Adoption of the EGP platform is expected to strengthen transparency, accountability, and compliance in line with public procurement and financial management best practices.

Speaking during the closing session, Dr Oluoch reaffirmed the College's commitment to automation and efficiency, noting: "This training is a critical step in entrenching digital systems that enhance transparency, reduce turnaround time, and ensure that our students, staff, and stakeholders receive timely, high-quality services." He further emphasised that fully leveraging ERP and EGP will support KMTC's Strategic Plan by improving service delivery and strengthening internal controls.

In her opening remarks, Ms. Chebungei underscored the importance of leadership ownership in successful systems implementation. "As Campus Principals, you are the stewards of these systems on the front line. Effective use of ERP and EGP will minimise waste, improve planning, and ensure that every shilling and every process adds value to our core mandate, training competent health professionals," she said.

The training also provided a platform to strengthen collaboration among Principals, promote peer learning, and reinforce KMTC's commitment to digital transformation, improved service delivery, and robust institutional governance. Once the ERP and EGP systems are fully implemented across all campuses, the College anticipates reduced inefficiencies, less wastage, and more effective and efficient service provision to students and stakeholders.

The College organised a training workshop on Protocol, Etiquette, and Event Management from November 10 to 15, 2025, at the Nakuru campus. This initiative is part of the College's preparations for the 94th Graduation Ceremony, scheduled for December 4, 2025, at the Moi International Sports Centre in Kasarani.

During the workshop, Deputy Director Academics (DDA), Dr Nyawira Mwangi, emphasised the College's commitment to delivering a well-coordinated and dignified ceremony that reflects KMTC's long-standing culture of professionalism and organisational excellence.

Participants from various KMTC departments attended sessions focused on planning and managing large-scale corporate events. They gained practical experience in the essentials of graduation ceremonies, event logistics, execution processes, protocol considerations for official functions, and the etiquette necessary to coordinate VIP guests. This practical approach allowed teams to enhance their skills in communication, coordination, and high-level event management, while emphasising teamwork, attention to detail, and adherence to institutional standards.

The training provided a vital foundation for a seamless, memorable event that reflects KMTC's stature as Kenya's leading health training institution.

Furthermore, during her visit to the Nakuru Campus, Dr. Nyawira also officiated the conclusion of a workshop on transferring students' data from the ERP system to the Alumni Database, which was held concurrently by the alumni office. She emphasised the importance of this digital shift, noting "Data transition is essential for strengthening the College's alumni management system and establishing a modern, efficient, and reliable alumni portal."

The DDA reaffirmed KMTC's dedication to digital transformation, anchored in the College's Strategic Plan, which integrates six key pillars that drive institutional excellence.

Dr. Nyawira underscored that KMTC remains committed to strengthening processes that improve service delivery, enhance governance, and elevate the overall quality of health professions education.

Lamu Campus hosted officials from the Lamu County National Housing team on November 18, 2025, to review plans for a new eight-storey student hostel under the National Housing Programme.

The project, which is set to commence immediately, will expand student accommodation, improve the learning environment, and is expected to become the tallest building in Lamu County, highlighting KMTC Lamu's growing role as a key development partner in the region.

Homa Bay Campus

KMTC Homa Bay marked an important milestone as its Diploma in Mortuary Science pioneer class attended the opening of the new Homa Bay County Referral Funeral Parlour on November 9, 2025.

This event marked a key moment in the students' academic journey, as the facility now provides modern equipment that enables hands-on learning and empowers them to deliver excellent patient care during their final journey.

County Governor Hon. Gladys Wanga, who officially commissioned the facility, appreciated the students' dedication, noting the campus's role in preparing health professionals who serve communities with excellence from the first point of care to the final honour of life.

Resource Mobilisation Manager, Mr Job Nyakado, led a delegation from Johnson & Johnson Global Health Equity to the Mathari campus for a site visit on November 12, 2025, in preparation for the establishment of a Simulation Laboratory with virtual reality (VR) integration.

This visit marked a significant step forward in enhancing mental health training, with the proposed facility designed to serve as a dedicated mental health simulation centre. Once operationalised, it will be scalable to support Higher National Diploma in Psychiatry Nursing students from Nakuru, Kisumu, and other campuses in the future.

Supported by Johnson & Johnson Global Health Equity, the project reinforces KMTC's dedication to adopting technology and improving its training methods in line with international standards.

Makindu Campus

Makindu Campus held a stakeholder meeting at the Campus grounds on November 13, 2025, to explore ways to support students and ensure no one is left behind due to financial constraints. The engagement brought together partners, community representatives, and institutional leadership to reflect on learners' challenges and identify sustainable solutions to ease their academic journey.

Similarly, the discussions focused on identifying opportunities to mobilize resources to develop further and enhance the Campus infrastructure. Improving facilities and increasing learning resources were identified as key priorities to ensure the smooth, continuous delivery of quality education to students.

Kwale Campus

On November 13, 2025, Kwale Campus held a meeting with the County Executive Committee Member for Health to discuss the mechanisms required to establish a nursing programme at the institution. The discussions centred on key areas such as infrastructure development, curriculum alignment with national training standards, clinical placement opportunities within county health facilities, and strategies for ensuring the program meets both local and international quality benchmarks.

Mwingi held a site handover meeting on November 19, 2025, for the construction of the new Student Village and accommodation facilities. This marked the beginning of the project, which aims to expand student housing and improve the overall learning environment.

The handover sets the stage for construction to commence, demonstrating a shared commitment to enhancing infrastructure and supporting the growing needs of students at Mwingi Campus.

Kilifi Campus

Kilifi County Commissioner Mr. Josphat Biwott, on November 14, 2025, held a meeting with KMTC Kilifi Campus Principal, Mr. Alex Deche, on staff secondment. Speaking during the meeting, the County Commissioner said the secondment of staff reflects the strong partnership the county administration seeks to build with KMTC. “The College will also benefit from the Affordable Housing Programme, with 950 housing units allocated to students as part of supporting their learning in a good and conducive environment,” he said.

The County Commissioner commended the College for its role in developing the healthcare workforce: “We applaud KMTC Management for consistently training a highly skilled health workforce, including specialised critical care nurses who are now serving across Kilifi County, the country, and even globally.”

On his part, Mr. Deche, representing CEO Dr. Kelly Oluoch, expressed gratitude to the County Commissioner for the additional staff. “This support will significantly enhance our administrative operations,” Mr. Deche said.

Awendo Campus

On November 21, 2025, Awendo Campus welcomed a delegation from the National Treasury as part of the KMTC Strategic Plan’s initiative to enhance the College’s financial sustainability. Led by Mr. Peter Makini from KMTC, the team engaged in a consultative meeting with Campus leadership focused on strengthening financial oversight and promoting responsible resource management.

The visit aimed to assess existing financial processes, offer expert guidance, and foster collaboration. It marked a significant advancement toward aligning the campus’s practices with the Strategic Plan’s Finance pillar, which underscores the importance of effective resource management, improved financial reporting, and increased accountability across all campuses.
